1 Cape Ashizuri

Located at the southernmost point of Shikoku, it has an observatory at the cape sticking out into the Pacific Ocean, which offers a 270-degree view of the horizon, making you realize that the globe is round.

2 Tatsukushi, Minokoshi Kaigan Coast

Along the coast of this ocean area with Japan's first national underwater park, you can see various patterns on strange-shaped rocks, which were created from strata from the ancient days by wind and waves.

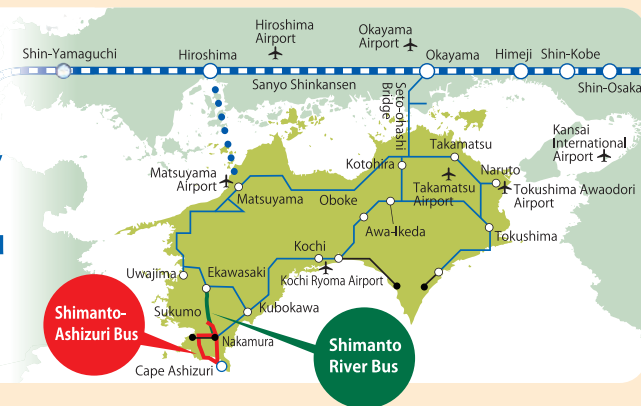

3 Glass-bottom boat

You can closely see the underwater world with one of the biggest shikoro coral colonies in Japan along with tropical fish as well as strange-shaped rocks.
